According to the official list the Pontiffs Pio VII (who began his reign in 1809), Leo XII (1832-1839), Plo VIII (1828-1831), Gregory XVI (1831-1830), Pio IX (1846-1878), and the reigning Pope Lee XIII, have pronounced 310 beatifications, while the names of seventy-eight holy men and women were placed on the roll of saints by them.

Leo XIII. His Holinets, Lou XIII, was pleased to pronounce thirty-one beatifications and ter canonizations during his most successful pontificate. According to the authorities of the Congregation of the Holy Ettas, the present Pope, since the beginning of his reign, has taken particular interest in the marty:s who suffered under Henry VIII and his daughter, Queen Elizabeth of England, and nothing gave him greater happiness than the beatmeation of Carsinal Fisher, thishep of Rochester, of Margaret Pole, mether of Cardinal Pole, and of Thomas

The authorities of the Holy Rites office explained to your correspondent the prepoblerance of beatifications over canonizations as follows: A motion for beatification may be filed at the Vatican in favor of any occased Catholic by furnishing proofs that, while in the flesh, he or she practiced to a remarkable and heroic degree the three theological virtues, faith, hope and charity, and the four cardinal virtues, pruleine, justice, courage and temperance, with all that they imply:

respectively, the religious henors paid to him or her.

Rome sees a beatification once in every three or four years. Several persons, it will be renembered, were beatified during the Pene's inhibe. One, a Spaniard, of the Sixteenth Century, was known to his centemperaries as the "Apostic of Atdaiusia," and received the honor in the presence of 7,000 pilgrims from the penicsula.

The splendid ceremiony takes place in the Sala delie Canonizazione, a beautiful hall over the vestibule of St. Peter's, extending the whole width of the church, and the rites include the reading of the bull. To Deam, the unveiling of the image or pleture, and a special collection of prayers. The Pope himself offers incense to the newly blessed and amountoes that public prayer is permissible to the beatined.

the beatification must be carried before the cardinals, and when their eminences have approved of it, it is submitted to the consistiony presided over by the Pope.

Mactyrs, Confessors and Virgins.

Two hundred and five out of the 316 heartified persons were martyrs.

Of the seventy-eight canonized, farty-eight were martyrs, the seventy-four confessors and seven virgins.

The authorities of the Hely Rites office explained to your correspondent the preparations as follows: A motion for heartification to the process, which gives the superlative title of saint to the previously heattified person, and they extend over many years, and sometimes from one century to another.

"Above all, more intractes must be a tested before canonization can be talked of. That means the Vatican authorities will not consent to a new and still more rigid in vestigation, unless miracles continued to be wrought at the blessed person's shrine.

"Proof of this forth-oming, the faithful are required to show that the subject has never told a lie. This must be vouched for by reputable witnesses. Becards of their testimony may be kept from generation to generation, and, if well authenticated, are accepted as evidence. Secondly, it must be proven that the subject was positively unselfish in all deeds, pure, kind and unworbilly, without o e taint upon his of her personal character. This must be vouched for by the testimony of a large number of witnesses who knew the person intimately during life."

"All this," concluded the officer of the Congregation of Rites, "takes much time, and more often than not two or three decades may, even 15 or 190 years, pass by, before the Holy See is eatisted that the suffect for whom sourreme honors are sought is worthy of them. The one eminent exception to this rule was the case of St. Francis d'Assisi, who was canonized within two years after his death, and soon afterwards a church was dedicated to him at his birthplace.

The Real Meaning of Canonization.

Your correspondent begged the prelate for a deficition of the term canonization. "It is the final process," he said, "In the recognition and estimation of the virtues of a servant of God preparatory to his or her being elevated to the niltars, and commended to the perpetual veneration and invocation of the church. The act makes prayer to the canonized obligatory, Churches and altars may be freely erected in honor of one canonized but only in a limited way to one heatified."

This functionary is especially nominated for each beatilleation and canonization and and the brightest, most analytical thinkers among the presides are selected for the office. Reasons of state, too, speak in its favor, and though such cannot influence the judges' final decision, of course, they might have a ton-dency to hurry the proceedings. The Congregation of Rites is said to be satisfied by the priors of piety, unselfishness and the performances of miracles furnished, but the derll's advocate successed in throwing doubt on the contention that the maid enjoyed supernatural inspiration. He persistently refuses to admit the reality of the "voices" which, it is said, the maid heaved from heaven, and there the matter rests at present.

The prelate from the holy rites office cautioned your correspondent against failing into the common error of speaking of Joan's prospective "canonization."
"The present proceedings only ask that she be placed among the "bestified," he said—it would be against church law to ask higher honors for her at the beginning."

St. Rose achieved the highest pitnacle because of the mirrales she performed while in the flesh and because of others that are still wrought at Intervals at her shrine. The history of her canonization is so instructive, at the ame time that I will shortly review it for the benefit of American readers.

the benefit of American readers.

Long Belay in Canonization.

'St. Rose died in August, 1817, that is, undet the pontificate of Poul V, and the andistation for her beatification began under his successor. Uthan VIII, who set on the papal throne from 1821 to 1841. Agreeable to the prayers of the metropolitan of the Church of Lima, the ciergy, nobility and the people, Pope Urban at last sent a commission to South America to investigate the case on the spot. There were then still many living winesses to Rose's holy life, and the papal ministers also had occasion to inquire into the circumstances of the miracles worked by her and subsequently in consequence of prayer at her sepalcher.

'The commission brought back to Rome so many well authenticated accounts respecting the subject that his Holiness allowed the testimony to be laid before the Congregation of Rites, which, thereupon, began to sift and weigh the evidence according to the prescribed rules.

'Yet I rose died ere one-tenth part of the inquirence was over. The good cause well slowly on under lungent N (1841-1850, and even the next Pope. Alexander VII (1851-1851), did not see its floish, though all the religious and secular orders of Lims. the Viceroy Council of State and the Manistrates of the different town entreated his Poliness to give Lima her much cherished pattoness.

'Rose's heatification was at last prenounced by Clement IN 1855-1851, and his successor of the same mans, the tenth Clement, placed this American Virgin on the roll of status nearly fifty years after her doubt. Even the intercession of Kings Philip IV and Charles II of Spain was powerless to hurry the process by a single month. The various commissions and authorities by the way, examined all together 183 witnesses to Rose's holy life and miracles.'

Fige Leo also placed three small children on the list of the beatified, John Come, 12 years old, his brother, Peter, 1 years old, and Fernandez Glorgi, 4 years old. These died in the same massacre that crushed the blessed Lucia's gray hair into the dust. Of the seventy-eight new saints, forty-seven were marryrs and the majority of them suffered death in Tonquin. South Asia, in 1815 and later. The list of the Tonquin marryrs is headed by the yenerabia Bishop Melchlor, a Frenchman, who was murdered with great barbarity on July 27, 180.
